NEWSFLASH - ASIC Takes Action Against NAB

The corporate regulator has launched legal action against National Australia Bank for manipulating the bank bill swap rate (BBSW). This is serious. That rate influences mortgage and credit card interest rates. This affects every person in the country.

ASIC alleges that NAB intended to create an artificial price and it was seeking to maximise its profits and minimise its loss. This is the Aussie installment of rate rigging that in the UK became known as the LIBOR scandal. Banks involved were fined billions.

NAB is now the third of the Aussie Big Four to be charged with these serious offences - unconscionable conduct and market manipulation in the way it set a key interest rate. The other two are ANZ and Westpac.

What do these three operations have in common? Did you guess? That's right the previous CEOs of each - Cameron Clyne, Mike Smith and Gail Kelly all jumped ship before the ship hit the fan (or is that iceberg :)

Turnbull says ASIC is doing a good job (Really? Suing a Liberal Party donor like NAB?) no need for a Royal Commission. BRN says rubbish!

Shorten says - "How many more people need to suffer and get ripped off before Turnbull stops covering up for the banks?" ... "Rather than hold the big banks accountable, Mr Turnbull is gifting them a $7.4 billion tax handout. It is an insult to everyone who's been ripped off. Mr Turnbull has a choice here - and he's putting the big banks first. He's governing for the banks, not the Australian people." BRN says - Pre-election talk is cheap Bill - show us the Terms of Reference.
